

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a document information management system, an editable form of document information and a reference-only form of the document information are managed. Document information is offered in only the editable form to users desiring updating of document information. When this document information is utilized, a subsequent utilization state of the document information is followed.

FOUO 0654260